MOVERS-N-SHAKERS

ADDITIONS: Two new professors have been appointed at FIU's College of Business Administration. Gary Hunter has joined the college as the new professor of marketing and Karlene Cousins has been named assistant professor for "Decision Science and Information Systems." Hunter, who earned his Ph.D. at University of North Carolina- Chapel Hill, has had more than ten years of management experience at Proctor & Gamble and KFC-PepsiCo as well as the U.S. Army. Cousins, who graduated with a doctorate from Georgia State University, was formerly the MIS manager in the Jamaican aviation industry. FIU's College of Business Administration is one of 482 business schools in the world and ranks in the top 10 among these in students that graduate each year.
