Business students donate computers to children

Florida International University business students raised more than $20,000 to donate specialized computer equipment to benefit 90 special-needs students from Project Thrive, a West Kendall early intervention program for kids with developmental disabilities.

The seven computer modules include a touch-screen monitor, computer, preschool-sized computer table and age-appropriate software.

The students are from FIU's BBA+ weekend program, which offers undergraduate level classes over the weekend.
