HAARD WORK: Jerry Haar of Florida International University's Management and International Business Department has been appointed associate dean of International Affairs and Projects, College of Business Administration. He begins the role Jan. 1. Mr. Haar is to facilitate activities in the international arena, spearheading a five-year strategic plan for international offsite program development and externally-funded international research. He's to serve as the "international face" of the college to its advisory boards as well as professional organizations locally and beyond. He has been Florida International's associate director of the Knight Ridder Center for Excellence in Management as well as faculty director of the International Business Honors Program.
