The White House Project Featured in O, The Oprah Magazine!

What happens when you take 80 phenomenal women—each of whom has an innovative idea to make the world a better place—and give them the skills they need to make their vision a reality? You get The Transformational and inspiring experience that was Women Ruler, a groundbreaking cross-sector leadership training developed by The White House Project and O, The Oprah Magazine, supported by American Express.

You can now read all about the participants and their life-changing weekend in an eight-page feature in the November issue of O, The Oprah Magazine, available now on newsstands and online. In Oprah’s own words in her editorial letter, “Their stories just might inspire you to pursue your own wildest world-changing dreams.”

Choose from over 3,000 applicants, the 80 women and their projects are as diverse as the problems they are striving to improve. From Beth Ordorick, who is encouraging young women to pursue careers in science and technology, through television, to Nadine Bean, who is engaging social work students to help rebuild the spirit of New Orleans’s beleaguered Lower Ninth Ward, these women are exemplars of strength, innovation, and inspiration. Click here to read the stories of all 80 women.

Driven by the belief that now more than ever is a time when we need women leaders in all sectors, we developed Women Ruler by applying our award-winning political leadership training model to everyday arena where women want to lead. The results of our first ever cross-sector leadership training were tremendously exciting. As you will read in the article, the weekend was full of breakthroughs, “cross-pollination of ideas,” as the O feature puts it, and the palpable feeling that these women were moments away from changing the world.

Through trainings like this one, we are creating the future leaders of our country, and keeping them connected with each other in a growing network.

When you support The White House Project, your contribution will help to cover a woman’s tuition and travel to a weekend-long training, supply her with training materials, and provide her with additional support. But more importantly, your gift will allow her to join a group of motivated, diverse, and dedicated women who are hungry for the chance to lead—and give her the tools she needs.
